PHILOSOPHY FROM FLO

In the early part of the twentieth century legislatures began mandating licensing exams for nurses. The focus of testing was then and continues to be on measuring the level of skills and knowledge considered necessary to assure competence of each individual requesting permission to practice. Although the focus remains the same there have been significant changes in the process since that time.

The first licensing exams were prepared by individual boards of nursing and contained largely essay questions. It is difficult now to imagine preparing and scoring such an exam with any uniform degree of objectivity. It is even harder to imagine successfully writing such an exam after having progressed through the American system of education, where it is felt that multiple choice questions can be prepared and scored with the greatest degree of objectivity. It is even possible, given the appropriate set of circumstances, for an individual to progress from K-12 without being required to answer an essay question as a means of evaluation.

In 1942, at a conference for state board examiners, the members adopted a resolution requesting the National League of Nursing Education (now the NLN) Committee on Nursing Tests to assist individual boards in adopting questions for machine scoring. Staff of the NLNE Committee prepared drafts of all tests for inspection and review by each board of nursing. The State Board Test Pool Service was created in 1944 and by the end of that year 23 states had administered one or more of the test pool exams. By 1951 all 48 states and District of Columbia were using the test pool service. This was the beginning of an era when increasing emphasis was placed on evaluation tools and was evident in all areas of education with major impetus coming from vocational education. Until that time little thought was given to objectivity, validity and criticality and the exact variable to be measured was not definitely established.

It is toward the end of establishing exactly what is to be measured that the recent study on role delineation and job analysis for the registered professional nurse was done. From such a study, a test plan can be formulated which will reflect the level and scope of practice. During all my professional life I have heard many who questioned whether the licensing exams for nurses were actually a valid measurement. Were they merely measuring the individuals past education or were they measuring the ability of that nurse to function safely with an eye toward future growth in practice. That statement seems to express two entirely different concepts. From the perspective of boards of nursing, the safety of the public can best be assured by the latter.

During the 1970's a study on the validity of the State Board Test Pool Exams was conducted. A part of that study defined then current behaviors in practice and the current test plans are based on those behaviors. In 1980 the Delegate Assembly of NCSBN adopted the test plan currently in use for construction of NCLEX-RNs with the same procedure being followed later for NCLEX-PNs. Both test plans included the integration of all areas of nursing. In other words, only one passing score was established and reported. One of the most frequently asked questions during that period of change was concerning how nurse educators would tell their graduates who had failed what their areas of weaknesses were. A diagnostic profile was subsequently prepared to assist in that matter. However, the question persists. The diagnostic profile is based on the test plan categories, which are the parts of the nursing process. Few if any nursing programs present curriculae in that manner, therefore, the diagnostic profile is seen to be of little assistance, although no better solution has been suggested.

At the present time frequent job analyses are performed. According to Eileen McQuaid Dvorak, Executive Director of NCSBN, "It remains important to state that the primary purpose of the nursing licensure examination is to help ensure that candidates who are licensed by a state board of nursing to enter the practice of nursing are those who demonstrate the minimum level of competence to provide safe and appropriate care."² A study titled "Study of Nursing Practice and Job Analysis and Role Delineation of Entry Level Performance of Registered Nurses" has just been completed and was presented to the Delegate Assembly at the NCSBN Convention held August 5-10, 1986 in Williamsburg, VA. The Delegate Assembly agreed that, based on the findings of the study and following the recommendation of the Examination Committee, the test plan is adequate but does need some modification. The current test plan will remain in use until modifications are complete and new tests prepared. The frame of reference for categories of the current test plan is called the locus of decision making with specific nursing behaviors categorized in terms of the nursing process. The current study has identified possible categories for the modified test plan as being somewhat different. They are coordination of care, health system management; individual client care management; direct client care; and health promotion and selfcare.

In the next Newsletter I will explain the developmental process of preparing the tests so you may see how that process combined with the great care used in determining what is to be tested are definite indications that the NCLEX-RN and NCLEX-PN do indeed measure the entry level competence and thus help assure the safety of the public.

EMPLOYER ALERT !!!

PLEASE CALL THE BOARD OFFICE

Due to an increase in the number of falsified applications in this office and identified impostors, the Board is asking employer assistance in the procedure of verifying licensure prior to employment. Please call the Board of Nursing office and we can easily verify a temporary work permit or status of an individual within minutes.

Some examples of what might identify an impostor:

1. Applying for a position when there is no indication that those individuals have worked in the capacity as that in which they are requesting employment.
2. Do not have a current Missouri license or temporary work permit.
3. Do not produce a license at interview and/or have continued excuses for not producing a license.
4. Job references are not in order when contacted.
5. Educational background is not correct. Example: Indicates receiving a BSN from a program which does not offer a BSN.
6. Fraudulent license. We have received copies of licenses from other states that have been "home made".

Please ask for several types of identifying information and ... P L E A S E ... CALL THE BOARD OFFICE ... WE ARE HERE TO SERVE YOU.

FRAUDULENT DEGREES PURCHASED BY MISSOURIANS

Special Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation have notified the office of the Attorney General in the State of Missouri that Alumni Arts, in North Carolina was selling fraudulent degrees. This office has been furnished with a list of individuals who live in Missouri and purchased degrees from this company. In checking our records we did not find that any of the individuals were licensed in Missouri as a nurse. If you would like to have additional information regarding this, please contact our office.

COMMENTS FROM CAROL

We have recently received several inquiries regarding modification of the licensure examination procedure for handicapped candidates. In the year that I have been administering the examination, we have not processed any requests for modification, so it was necessary for me to research this procedure. I'd like to share this information with any new directors/coordinators or others who may also be unfamiliar with the process.

The NCSBN Procedure for Responding to Member Boards Regarding Handicapped Candidates states in pertinent part:

For candidates with Severe Impairment of Upper Extremities or of Reading or Visual Impairment or Learning Disability the Board of Nursing shall determine that the Candidate is handicapped and shall submit to the NCSBN:

- 1) An official written request to modify examination procedures at least 30 days prior to the scheduled examination date.
- 2) An official written request for modification of the examination materials (such as large type, braille, audio-visual tapes) at least 120 days prior to the scheduled examination date.

In giving the consideration to forwarding a request, the Board of Nursing may wish to receive:

- 3) A letter from the candidate's nursing education program, indicating the need for the modification and explaining how the educational program handled the problem.
- 4) A letter from an appropriate professional person confirming the diagnosis of the disability.

The procedure further requires that the written request should specify the modification desired and the rationale for meeting specific security, administration and seating requirements.

The NCSBN staff will then report all Handicapped Requests approved by NCSBN staff at the next meeting of the Administration of Examination Committee for Committee acceptance or staff action. The 1986 NCSBN Book of Reports submitted at the Eighth Annual Convention August 5-9, 1986 included this portion of the report from the Administration of Examination Committee:

Reviewed and approved National Council staff authorization for 23 handicapped candidates from 12 jurisdictions (dyslexia, 6; reading disability, 6; learning disability, 5; visual impairment, 3; quadriplegic, 1; hearing impairment, 1; visual impairment and learning disability, 1). Authorizations were for additional time, 21; reader, 8; recorder 2. A definition of a handicapped individual was adopted from the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 for inclusion in the procedure.

The entire procedure and the definition of a handicapped individual as defined in the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 are on file in this office, and we would be happy to provide any further information about or clarification of this process.
